⊗ St. John's, Antigua

There's a grace and elegance to the capital of Antigua that immediately makes visitors feel at home. Perhaps that's because this city of 31,000 brings such a well rounded menu of things to see and do. Pulling into port, it's hard not to miss the welcoming spires of St. John's Cathedral, twice destroyed by earthquakes (in 1683 and 1745) but since then a rebuilt masterpiece and a testament to the fortitude of this island nation.

It's a leisurely trip from Heritage and Redcliffe quays to the heart of the city, home to a series of shops, cafes and bars. On the southern side of town there's also a lively farmers' market worth exploring for its crafts and local produce.

Highlights

Antigua's lush rainforest, just 40 minutes away from St. John's, is best experienced from the sun-dappled treetops during a canopy tour. It's a scenic and spectacular zig-zag through the woods and across a gorge, stopping to soak up the views at tree houses and suspension bridges, overlooking a rock pool and the dense forest below.

Antigua's crafts and cuisine can prove a sensory delight, with such places as Cedars Pottery Shop located at Buckley Heights (known for its pottery) and Pineapple Farms (specializing in Antigua's famous "Black Pineapple") offering visitors a fun way to explore their taste buds and view first-hand a slice of Caribbean agriculture, from mangoes to bananas. The aromas at Rosemac's Herb Garden are intoxicating; their teas delicious.

Cedar Valley Golf Club, set amid Antigua's tropical woods, a quick 10-minute cab ride from St. John's harbor, offers serious players and weekend duffers alike the rare opportunity to take in both 18 holes of championship golf and some of the West Indies most spectacular ocean views.

⊗ Shore Excursions

St. Lucia: Cruise to Soufrière and Volcano

Cruise along many villages to view the magnificent twin peaks – Gros and Petit Piton. Disembark and join your non-air conditioned bus to the Sulphur Springs where you will see the bubbling hot springs reeking of sulphur. You will also visit Coubaril Estate, a working plantation, where you learn all about the processing of cocoa and juice extraction from sugar cane. Creole buffet lunch will be served before your return journey.
