Welcome to Oslo, Norway

Founded in 1050 by King Harold Hardrade, Oslo is a city abounding in ancient history and present day interest, but very little of the early city remains. Duke Erik of Sweden attacked the heart of what was the ancient city, "Akershus Fortress," only 10 years after it was built in 1310. Subsequently, it was besieged by Christian II of Denmark in 1531-1532 and by the Swedes again in 1537 and 1716, when Sweden was trying to win back Norway from Danish control. Periodically plagued by fire, the old wooden city was completely destroyed by a devastating fire in 1624. All of these reasons explain why there is a scarcity of old buildings in the city today. King Christian IV (the Danish ruler of Norway) rebuilt the town about one mile west of the original site, bringing it closer to the Akershus Fortress and named it Christiania. The King decreed that all of the buildings were to be made of brick or stone and the streets to be of uniform width. For the next 200 years, the city progressed slowly with setbacks along the way. It was only in 1814 that Norway proclaimed its independence from the Danes and Oslo began to expand. Most of the principle buildings of Oslo date back to this time, as does the increase in trade that finally brought Oslo to economic prosperity and stability. The 19th century also brought about an increase in population. Oslo's population in 1855 was 40,000 and in 1900 had jumped to 150,000. In 1905, Norway achieved total independence when King Haakon VII was crowned as the first King of Norway since the Middle Ages. Oslo is a delightful mix of old European traditions and a new, younger European Union vitality.

YOU CAN HELP US PROTECT

THE ENVIRONMENT

Holland America Line takes many steps to reduce the use of fossil fuels. Since the ship must burn fuel to create both power and water, you can help by:

- Keeping your balcony doors closed at all times.
- Turning off the lights when leaving your stateroom.
- Leaving the air conditioning at the middle setting when leaving your stateroom.
- Using your towels for two days rather than one.

Thank you for doing your part to protect our planet.

COMMUNITY BULLETIN BOARD

If you enjoy board or card games, or if you'd like to meet fellow guests with similar interests, simply sign your name, interest and stateroom number and look for fellow guests on the list with similar interests. It's a great way to have fun and make new friends.
